ABOUT THE KITCHEN

Maintaining original character was priority for the owners of this midcentury modern gem. This kitchen was part of a larger whole home renovation and needed to be efficient and intriguing. The cabinet fronts were designed with a pattern reminiscent of the original pegboard fronts. Vibrant orange and white, an homage to midcentury modern color, were introduced to break up the earthy palette surrounding the space. White Corian countertops and integral sink bring a sleek feel and the easy clean-up the clients desired. A circular walnut cutting board was inset into the Corian, creating a top for island seating. Miele, Sub-Zero, and Faber appliances were selected for their sleek modern feel and seamless integration. A freestanding wall conceals a coffee bar, pantry, and refrigerator. Handmade backsplash tiles compliment original tiles in the family room. Original light fixtures were repurposed to complete the dining room, which features a midcentury modern hutch given to the clients by the original homeowner.
