Brooklyn designer William Harvey turned to the lost-wax process to fashion the ergonomic Botero collection, which he describes as "sinuous, curvaceous and generous forms." The pieces can be used in cabinetry for kitchens and baths, or on fine furniture. Created for Du Verre Hardware from recycled aluminum, the grouping features a small knob, a large knob that also can serve as a hook, and 4-, 9- and 17-inch pulls. Available in oil-rubbed bronze, polished nickel, satin nickel and white. duverre.com; toll-free 1-888-388-3773.
