slate roof

The red slate tiles are original to the house. The couple painted the once-gray stucco siding warm beige to bring out the crimson shade even more.

arbor

wild rose

Barbara and Rick added the delicate steel arbor to amplify their front yard's English garden vibe; wild rose climbs the trellis.

Montebello 53"W x 23"D x 84"H iron garden arbor, $170, plowandhearth.com

front door

The tones of the orangey red stained fir door pair nicely with the red roof. Above the semicircle window, a coat of arms (also original to the home) adds even more historic character.

7322 Bungalow fir door, from $900, simpsondoor.com for stores

potted plants

On the steps, a ceramic planter holds low-maintenance lobelia and red petunias.

Misco Home and Garden Capri 7"-tall resin planters in red, $27 for a set of 4, wayfair.com

arborvitae

Planted in a row behind the poured concrete and granite border, tall evergreen trees create a natural (but stylish) privacy screen.
