UPDATING THE CLASSICS

◆ The clients wanted their New Hampshire home to be “classic but not overwrought,” explains designer Cecilia Redmond. “They wanted something that nods to the past but is also of this century.” The master bath stands as the perfect illustration of how Redmond fulfilled their hopes. The tub is based on a classic Victorian slipper tub, but has a more modern, clean-lined look. The cabinetry, too, shows traditional influence, but the moldings and hardware take it in a more contemporary direction. The tub and shower are separated by a tall slab of Calacatta marble embellished with a strip of Walker Zanger mosaic that gives the effect of a waterfall of bubbles flowing down to puddle under the tub. Radiant heat in both floors and walls keeps the space toasty even in a long New Hampshire winter.
