1 Kirei Board

Kirei Board offers a strong, lightweight, environmentally friendly substitute for a wood countertop. The material is made from reclaimed sorghum straw and held together by KR Board, a water-based, polymer-isocyanate adhesive, with no added formaldehyde. It has a number of applications, including wall covering, cabinetry, furniture and flooring, among others. Kirei Board sheets come in sizes of 6, 10, 20, and 30 millimeters; their weight ranges from 4.5-45 pounds.

2 ThinkGlass bar countertops

ThinkGlass' new glass bar countertops are made of 100-percent recycled glass and available in a wide array of shapes and thicknesses. Embedded textures, edge treatments and colors help individualize each design. The non-porous surface hides all marks and avoids mold and mildew. LED lighting is available in a wide spectrum of colors; a remote-controlled RGB device offers more colors and special effects such as flashing or fading lights.

3 Fireclay Tile Crush recycled glass tile

The new Crush line of recycled glass tile from Fireclay Tile requires only one-fourth the energy of traditional cast glass tile to make. Each piece is created from local, recycled, pre-consumer window glass using Fireclay's proprietary glass fusing technology and state-of-the-art kiln firing. Buyers can completely customize their orders, with 17 sizes and 40 colors available; tiles are also available in both gloss and matte finishes.
