1 The Berwick Widespread Bathroom Faucet from American Standard is WaterSense-certified, with a 1.2 gallons per minute maximum flow rate. Drip-free performance for the faucet's lifetime is made possible by ceramic disc valve cartridges. The swivel spout rotates for rinsing in hard-to-reach spots and provides easy access to the sink basin. The Speed Connect metal drain installs in less time with fewer parts; no adjustments are necessary, the company says. americanstandard-us.com CIRCLE NO. 909

2 Using patented marine-grade technology, Aquor Water Systems' House Hydrant Outdoor Tap offers an in-wall outdoor faucet system that's compatible with any garden hose and delivers full water pressure. Once connected to the flush-mounted outlet, the hose's twist-lock system automatically turns on the water and uses water pressure to keep the valve closed, for a leak-free outlet. The exterior resists wear from outdoor exposure, while the hydrant's stainless-steel interior body offers freeze protection to -30° F. aquorwatersystems.com CIRCLE NO. 910

This space-saving tub is the result of a collaboration with design studio Conran + Partners. At 68¾ inches long, its edge forms a natural shelf against the wall, hiding pipework and providing a platform where plumbing can be deck-mounted. The Eldon comes in seven exterior color finishes and can be installed with or without an overflow. vandabaths.com CIRCLE NO. 913
