1 MotionSense from Moen

The wave sensor at the top of this new faucet starts and stops the water flow with a simple hand movement above the faucet. The ready sensor near the base of the faucet identifies when an object such as a cup or hand is placed beneath the spout and runs water for as long as that item remains in range. A handle on the side of the faucet adjusts temperature and flow of water.

The slightly curved corners allow for easier cleaning while providing the crisp look of a professional kitchen for the home. The sinks are 10 inches deep and hand-fabricated from heavy-duty 16-gauge stainless steel for the durability home chefs demand.

3 Sterling Cinch Kitchen Sink

The Cinch undercounter sink makes life easier from installation to everyday use. There are two installation options to choose from: The integrated faucet deck option eliminates the need for drilling faucet holes into the countertop. The second option allows for traditional undercounter installation. Stainless steel Cinch sinks feature deep basins and rear-oriented drains that provide extra room for undersink storage.

4 Delta Linden

The design of this single-handle pull-out kitchen faucet was inspired by a strong presence in nature, like that of a tree with reaching branches. This water-efficient product offers an enhanced flow option to fill the sink, pots, or vases. It delivers both 1.5 gpm stream and spray settings for water efficiency and a 2 gpm stream setting for high performance. Linden is a touch-activated faucet featuring Touch20 Technology.
