BOOM TOWN IS FALLING DOWN

WHAT DOES THE SHODDY
CONSTRUCTION OF 2005 MEAN
FOR REMODELERS TODAY?

1] Mortar Net Solutions has added to its WallDefender line with a new moisture management solution ideal for smaller masonry wall cavities like those found in residential construction. As with the original 1- and 2-inch thick WallDefender, the new 0.4-inch-thick version helps prevent moisture damage to masonry cavity walls by suspending mortar droppings above flashing on two levels of its trapezoidal-shaped open-weave mesh, while allowing water to flow through the mesh and exit the cavity. mortarnet.com For more information, circle No. 805 on reader service card

2] The Stream Bath from MTI Baths aims to recreate the experience of bathing in a forest stream with a hydrotherapy option that uses directional currents of water flow without any turbulence or bubbles. Available on most of the company's Designer Collection drop-in tubs, both soakers and air baths, Stream Bath uses strategically placed rotating vents, not jets, to move the water around. Bathers can customize how the water streams flow across the body, and there's an optional inline heater that maintains water temperature at 104°F. mtibaths.com No. 806

3] The NanaWall Berricade offers all the attributes of an aluminum-framed NanaWall openable glass wall up to 38 feet wide—indoor/outdoor lifestyle, fresh air, open views—with the added bonus of being strong enough to resist bears. Features include: reinforced structural posts and impact-rated, laminated glass; secure multi-point tamper-resistant locks; and bottom shoot bolts that have a 1-inch throw for maximum security. nanawall.com No. 807

4] The East Linear pull-down kitchen faucet from Newport Brass offers a modern, architectural design and features solid brass construction as well as a swivel spout assembly with side-mounted ADA-compliant lever handle. In addition—as with all the company's kitchen faucets—the East Linear faucet meets the 1.8 gpm CalGreen flow-rate requirement. It also features a two-function, toggle-control spray engine and magnetic docking system to secure the spray engine to the spout. newportbrass.com No. 808

5] True 42, from True Refrigeration, is a full-size residential refrigerator inspired by the company's commercial models. It uses stainless steel on the fridge's exterior, interior, shelves, bins, and baskets. The unit has ergonomically designed tubular handles, industrial-grade door hinges, and an LCD readout. truerefrigeration.com No. 809
