

SHOWHOUSES INSPIRE PATRONS AND PUSH DESIGNERS TO TEST THEIR BOUNDARIES.

Thus was the case at the Christopher Kennedy Compound, part of the 2016 Modernism Week Showhouse. Eighteen designers and Kennedy himself transformed a gem of a midcentury home nestled in the outskirts of Palm Springs.

The entry by Colin Blanchard and Kenneth McRobbie evokes modern desert living with a worldly aura. "We envisioned homeowners who love art and quality pieces that reflect craftsmanship and enduring beauty," Blanchard says. To create a better connection with the courtyard and increase natural light, the duo replaced the original wood doors with glass. A table with a carved-wood base by McGuire breaks up the symmetrical space while stone pedestals topped with antique Asian jars anchor each niche. Portable iron ottomans with leather seats accompany the arrangement. Circa Lighting's cubist chandelier optimizes negative space overhead.

A majestic equine diptych greets guests in the living room by Michael Berman. To reflect pretty sunsets, the designer also installed a wall of mirrors. But the addition came with obstacles: "It was impossible to hang anything on them and they reflected everything, so we'd end up with duplicates," Berman says. To minimize reflections, he created the slender floor lamps with opaque cylindrical shades.

Blue velvet and oyster-hued chenille from Kravet cover the swivel chairs and boomerang-shape sectional sofa with plush channeling. Lacquered "Dimple" tables are by Berman for Theodore Alexander.

The lush exterior by Jamie Durie beckons beyond the living room windows. Frontgate's aluminum-and-teak dining table and coordinating chairs take in views of the pool and golf course. Chaise longues encourage visitors to relax and catch some rays. The garage is outfitted with Clopay exterior garage doors.

With its reflective ceiling, large-scale diptych, and stunning Murano glass chandelier, the dining room by Martyn Lawrence Bullard leaves a lasting impression. "It's high 1960s design with a true Palm Springs moment," the designer says. Bullard custom-designed the chrome geometric wallcovering. Vintage Paul Evans chairs upholstered in emerald leather surround a white pedestal table. The Rug Company's goat-hide rug adds softness to what is a tantalizing space. "After all, a room can be just as delicious as a meal," he adds.

A vintage Billy Haines sofa that once belonged to former pro football player Gene Howard jump-started the den's design. "It was in my inventory and I hadn't restored it, so this was a perfect opportunity to bring it back to life," says designer Patrick Dragonette. Together settee in Romo's spray-dyed viscose velvet. Murano glass lamps with twisted hips flirt with the vintage cowboy art above the console. The brass cactus sculpture is on loan from the designer's Phoenix home.

To brighten the master bath and expose its incredible backdrop, Kelli Ellis knocked out the vanity wall and replaced it with a window. "I wanted to see that gorgeous mountain view," she says. Suspended mirrors crown the marble-look countertop from Dekton by Cosentino. Stud-like white tiles form a focal-point wall behind the tub. Ferguson's contemporary pendant light caps the texture-filled respite.

"It's a glamorous cocoon where a lady indulges in the art of dressing," Kelly Lee says of the dressing room. A polka-dot desk, faux-fur stool, and playful banana-leaf wallcovering offer an upbeat spot to preen and prep. To ensure the space is organized, Lee outfitted the oasis with a custom TCS Closets system from The Container Store. A black-and-white-striped bench with acrylic legs provides a perch for putting on shoes. Glass pulls, colorful clothing, and a glitzy pendant light serve as finishing touches. The area rug is from Stanton Carpet.

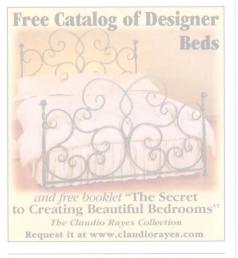

Carson Kressley didn't skimp on bold hues when it came to the sassy teen bedroom. "It's a riot of color that's super fun," says the designer. To achieve an "updated '70s vibe," Kressley coated the ceiling color of fine china, in the kitchen to warm taupe and flax. A medley of soft blues melds with smoky plums and grays, plus touches of sleek black in every room.

The glossy black pops in Courtney's office and in the glam bar, tucked in a handy central location under the stairs. Outdoors, on a freshly created back patio, black paint coats sliding barn doors that open to reveal another bar and a television. "It's a great place to entertain," Courtney says. "We love to invite friends over and watch football games out there.

"This is just such an inviting home," she concludes. "It's a great house all the way around—the perfect first house for our family." ##
