1 Haas Door has launched the SelectView option for its steel and aluminum garage doors, allowing customers to have windows in almost any spot. Unique configurations such as staggered windows or a vertical line of windows are possible; options for windows in the door's bottom section, such as glass in all the panels, also are doable. Decorative, specialty glass and inserts are available through SelectView, as dictated by the glass options of the garage door line chosen. Haasdoor.com / CIRCLE 854

2 An impact-resistant option for the Series 7000 Aluminum Door Systems and Windows will be available soon, announces Western Window Systems, part of PGTI's family of brands. Designed mainly for cold-weather regions on the East Coast, these residential doors and windows draw upon PGTI's expertise in hurricane-prone areas. And they have attained high energy performance ratings, according to the firm. Slated for completion in early 2019, this option will come in various sizes and configurations. 3 Multi-pass sliding doors from Johnson Hardware offer an appealing, affordable alternative to traditional doors. This option enables homeowners and designers to customize living spaces and enhance flow between rooms. These doors can be used to reshape home interiors, making seamless transitions between spaces that were once contiguous or separated by solid walls. The firm's multi-pass sliding door hardware comes in standard pre-packaged sets or can be customized with individual track lengths and different parts. 4 Grandeur Hardware's transitional line of entry sets allows homeowners to make a dramatic style statement with the front door as well as interior doors. The durable, elongated, solid brass hardware sets come in three types: One-Piece Handleset, Tall Plate Handleset, and Sectional Handleset. Grandeur entry set styles include Georgetown (shown), Arc, Carre, and Fifth Avenue. The One-Piece and Tall Plate Entry Hardware Collection is available in six finishes and Sectional Entry Hardware comes in five. Grandeurhardware.com / CIRCLE 857

5 Safe-Way Door offers another new color option for its Regency and Ambient garage doors: Driftwood in the Madera color palette. This is the third new color the company introduced in 2018 in an effort to meet consumers' growing desire to personalize and beautify their home exteriors. The firm constantly strives to offer more options to those selecting the look and style of their garage doors. Safewaydoor.com / CIRCLE 858
