Redesigned one-piece toilet

ICERA unveils an updated iteration of one of its most popular toilets, the Karo II. Incorporating many features of the original Karo model, the one-piece, elongated toilet adds a squared tank and elegant transitional lines. The toilet is crafted of white vitreous china, and its skirted trapway delivers a finished look and easier maintenance. It is ADA-compliant with a chair-height bowl, includes a Duroplast soft-close seat with quick release and utilizes the company's EcoQuattro technology to consume 1.28 gpf.

Shower control system pairs with universal valve

Adding to its line of smart shower controls, GROHE introduces the concealed GrohTherm SmartControl trim. Providing the same water temperature and flow rate control as the on-the-wall version, the concealed behind-the-wall version of the shower control system allows up to three shower outlets to run through a single wall plate. The Rapido SmartBox—designed to work with all GrohTherm SmartControl trims—has a slim design to ensure no additional depth is added to the wall trim.

Linear drain hidden behind wall

WallDrain from QUICKDRAIN USA introduces a novel shower drain concept that installs in the wall itself. Water exits via the shower pan's downward slope into a drain panel concealed behind the base of the wall, resulting in a nearly invisible drain solution. Adapting to almost any plumbing condition, the linear drain accommodates curbed and curbless showers. Nearly any solid-surface tile can be installed in the drain's magnetic vertical cover before it is attached to the shower wall for a fully integrated design.

Bath collection with minimalist aesthetic

PFISTER's Tenet Collection epitomizes purposefully minimalist design by stripping away any unnecessary elements. The 84 pieces in the collection showcase form while maintaining functionality. Examples from the collection include a single-control faucet that features a horizontal lever mounted on the side, rather than top. Its widespread faucets incorporate a new valving system that mounts below the deck, and the tub filler's shower arm cradle doubles as a diverter. The collection is available exclusively at Ferguson in brushed gold, polished chrome, matte black and brushed nickel.
