organic artistry

MASTER BATH AND CLOSET, JASON MITCHELL, JANSEL DESIGNS

In the light-filled bathroom, floating vanities in blond-washed wood by Bell Cabinetry & Design, hand-formed subway tile, Venetian plaster on the barrel vault ceiling and gray-and-white Temmer marble countertops lend an old-world vibe that served as the foundation for designer Jason Mitchell's curated and collected style. "I'm a lover of all things conversational in a space," he says. That remains especially true for the antiqued Belgian bluestone floors in a herringbone pattern that extend to a climactic arch. Transitional and timeless pieces, such as the teak chair at the freestanding tub and oversize lamps from Circa Lighting (instead of sconces), can float from room to room when entertaining. In the closet, organic shapes seen in the lamp, faces prominent in the artwork and vintage accessories soften the hard edges to achieve unisex design with multigenerational appeal. His use of Romo's cork wallpaper in the bathroom and a silk wallcovering by Innovations in the closet, along with exquisite detailing, such as a fringed ottoman and fur on a vintage three-legged chair, further establishes the fine line between masculinity and femininity with approachable luxury. —Lori Johnston
