TRENDS

Kitchen & bath trends

By Barbra Buoy

Form Meets Function

Elkay's innovative Dart Canyon™ stainless steel farmhouse sink is a beautiful blend of function and style.

The ADA-compliant, one-of-a-kind design features a built-in work shelf to hold sponges and other utensils, a nine-inch-deep bowl for stacking dishes or filling pots, and optional accessories for easy meal prep. www.elkay.com

Texture Meets Design

New countertop materials blend the visual and the tactile in one stunning package. Cambria's new Satin Ridge™ finish, LEABRIDGE™, features gradations of cool white and warm honey with textured ridges on the borders, creating a look reminiscent of salt flats. www.cambriausa.com

Shower Power

Bring the tropical trend to your bath with bamboo.

Kucera's environmentally-friendly bamboo hand shower with four body-spray nozzles adds an elegant touch to any bathroom. Thermostatic technology maintains a constant temperature, eliminating unexpected bursts of hot or cold water.

Champagne Tastes

If porcelain conjures up images of vintage dolls and jewelry dishes, prepare to be pleasantly surprised. The marbled walls of this striking floor-to-ceiling walk-in shower are just that, porcelain. Through the magic of technology, this inexpensive material can transform into a modern marble look-alike for a fraction of the cost.

A Perfect Match

With kitchens being a focal point of home design, the utilitarian vent hood has slowly evolved from a ubiquitous silver metal fan to a centerpiece. Becky Costa of Top Shop Stone says the latest trend is matching the hood material to counters and backsplash like this Calacatta Duro Porcelain for a seamless look.

Fit for a King

MTI Baths' new Bowie tub is an architectural addition to any bathroom with its unique pleated exterior. Each tub is made-to-order and handcrafted from MTI's signature SculptureStone® material, a mostly organic mixture of ground natural minerals and resins with the look and feel of molded stone.
