Manchester, United Kingdom

DESIGN Ruth Mottershead, creative director of LITTLE GREENE PAINT & PAPER DESIGN DETAILS Gray-green accents enliven the warm gray walls in this light-filled second-floor bathroom in a 19th-century Manchester farmhouse. "We wanted it to feel organic, so we used earthy, natural colors," shares Mottershead, noting that the entire space has been slathered in paint, including the tile floor and the soaker tub. "The result feels comfortable, welcoming, enveloping, cozy, and quite serene. It's the kind of space where you want to relax in a bath." BIG IDEA Easily transform a space by color drenching the walls, ceiling and moldings in the same color. "It adds a bit of drama." Or, for a unique look, she suggests painting the millwork in a bold accent color.
