1 Fabric-ated

North Carolina artist and designer Cassie Adams brings her artwork to life in a new line of colorful fabrics alongside a collaboration with Bibelot Home for a new line of custom lampshades. Cobalt blue, bright pink, brilliant red, and fun turquoise are easily mixed and matched to create the lively, energetic, and optimistic palette that Adams is known for, allowing customers to design a truly custom look. cassieadamsdesigns.com

2 Blown Away

The new Murano Collection from Ruvati brings a riot of color to the bathroom vanity. The line of vessel sinks is made of hand-blown Italian glass, authentically produced only on the island of Murano or in the city of Venice by craftsmen that infuse the glass with brilliant colors and gradient designs. The collection comes in two shapes, including the sleek circular basin and the more fanciful seashell design, each one created using methods that date back to ancient times. ferguson.com

3 Crystallized

To celebrate the thirty-year anniversary of Dornbracht's MEM fixtures, the luxury fittings company has partnered with Italian glass manufacturer Glass Design to create stunning all-glass MEM handles. Handcrafted in the Italian town of Vinci, in the heart of Tuscany, the unique pieces easily combine with the simple design and clean aesthetic of all the products in the MEM series. The two designs come in two sizes and can be paired with all eight MEM finishes, including brushed champagne and dark chrome. renaissancefileandbath.com

4 Ranch Hand

California-based interior designer and entertaining expert Nathan Turner paired up with Wallshoppe to release his first-ever fabric collection. Classic motifs like chintz, quilting, animal prints, and plaids get a modern makeover with a relaxed but refined aesthetic that amplifies his Northern California ranch upbringing. More than thirty different prints punctuate the collection, and the natural beauty of the Golden State. wallshoppe.com

5 That's Amore

The San Marco collection from New Ravenna pays homage to the company's Italian heritage, drawing inspiration from the infinite charm of Venice. Inspired by her travels to the Lagoon City, New Ravenna lead designer Jacquelyn Bizzotto designed ten tile patterns that capture the Byzantine mosaics, ancient geometric designs, elegant marble terrazzo, and the delicate intricacies of Venetian lace that give Italy its unique place in the world. The collection features historic Italian stone colorways with newer materials like Glazed Basalto, all handmade in Italy. renaissancefileandbath.com
