Towering twin palms flank the estate's distinctive front entrance, while a geometric turf design, water features, and adjacent fire bowls compose a dazzling welcome. An oversized pivot door opens into the home's elegant glass-box foyer.

LOCATED IN AN ORLANDO SUBURB known for its orange groves, oaks, and cypress trees, where panoramic sunset lake views and nightly fireworks displays are the norm, a stellar property commands attention. Nestled within Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill Club & Lodge, the 29,762-square-foot estate is a mere boat ride away from Isleworth Golf & Country Club on the famed Butler Chain of Lakes. A gem of a home in a prime location like this deserved a commensurate level of design attention, so when it came to its interiors and outdoor areas, the owners pulled out all the stops.

A pair of peacocks covered in Swarovski crystals are poised atop silver-leaf pedestals. A Coup D'Etat chandelier follows the form of a round ottoman from Muniz Plastics.

ABOVE: Hues of watery blue, soft gray, and silver compose a soothing palette in the primary bedroom. A central fireplace with a Blue Cristallo stone surround illuminates both the bedroom and seating area.
